Putting Paint to Canvas

If September was the unlined page, October is the splash of color across the canvas. As the autumn leaves turn vivid shades of gold, amber, and deep crimson, we're surrounded by a visual reminder of just how creative God is. It's a season that naturally invites us to slow down, look around, and notice the beauty in all the different colors and details coming together. In art, a master painter rarely relies on a single tube of paint. They blend warm tones and cool undertones, light and shadow, soft highlights and deep earth shades to create depth and warmth. In our community, God does much the same thing. Each person sitting in our pews, serving in our programs, or walking through our doors brings a unique color to the palette—different backgrounds, different generations, different gifts, and different life stories. Sometimes we wonder if our own contribution feels too muted, too ordinary, or even a little too worn out to matter. We wonder how our individual shade fits into the bigger picture. The beauty of being part of a church family is that we aren't responsible for creating the painting. God is the Master Artist. He thoughtfully curates the palette, dipping His brush into just the right color for every stroke to paint the exact picture He envisions. He blends the quiet introverts with the relational extroverts, the methodical planners who organize the details with the creative dreamers who bring new ideas to life, and those who serve faithfully behind the scenes with those who lead out front. He doesn't ask us to produce the masterpiece—He simply asks us to show up, make ourselves available, and let Him weave us into the artwork.

PASTOR APPRECIATION MONTH

WCC is blessed to have Pastor Patrick, and Pastor Jess, our awesome servant-leaders! Sunday mornings are just a glimpse of the time and energy they put into serving our church family, and our community. We appreciate them every day, but let's make extra effort this month to show it.
